Forget character. Read the canon.

Can. 7. If anyone says that the Church errs in that she taught and teaches that in accordance with evangelical and apostolic doctrine the bond of matrimony cannot be doctrine the bond of matrimony cannot be dissolved by reason of adultery on the part of one of the parties, and that both, or even the innocent party who gave no occasion for adultery, cannot contract another marriage during the lifetime of the other, and that he is guilty of adultery who, having put away the adulteress, shall marry another, and she also who, having put away the adulterer, shall marry another,[13] let him be anathema.

A note of congratulations to @JeffreyGoldberg on the occasion of his promotion to editor-in-chief of The Atlantic
- Jeffrey Goldberg is the personification of chronic elite non-accountability. He made his journalistic bones promulgating phony, discredited theories positing a link between Iraq and Al Qaeda (2002), the fruits of which were then cited by Dick Cheney as a top reason why everyone had to line up behind the invasion of Iraq. Far from suffering professional repercussions for this obvious malfeasance, Goldberg accrued additional prestige, which he later deployed in yet another discredited article agitating for a US-backed Israeli attack on Iran (2010). Jeffrey has also built up a reputation as someone anonymous "US officials" can run to when they want to air petty grievances, deploying his journalistic acumen for this purpose when he reported an unnamed official calling Netanyahu "chickenshit" (2014) – this then provoked a mini diplomatic crisis, forcing John Kerry to issue a Very Serious apologetic statement. And who can forget Jeffrey's fawning profile of Chris Christie (2012) in which the two attended a Bruce Springsteen concert together, presumably dancing to "Born to Run" in each other's arms. I still wonder if they also gave each other a big wet smooch at the end of the night.
- Anyone in non-elite fields who had committed these kinds of drastic, destructive errors would've received severe professional sanction. Conversely, Jeffrey gets promoted as editor of one of the nation's premier opinion journals. To quote Phil Collins: "That's just the way it is."

Podesta on immigration:
Muslims, blacks, roma "fare badly almost irrespective of circumstances"; Jews, Hindus/Sikhs, Chinese the opposite credible answer. They are unable to come up with an answer or don't like the answer that's staring them in the face. The main reason behind successful immigration should be painfully obvious to even the most dimwitted of asses: Some groups of people are almost always highly successful given only half a chance (Jews, Hindus/Sikhs and Chinese people, for example), while others (Muslims, blacks and Roma) for instance fare badly almost irrespective of circumstances. The biggest group of humanity can be found somewhere between those two extremes - the perennial overachievers and the professional never-do-wells.
